

VILLA READY TO SIGN FOR LONG TRUCE

MEXICAN CHIEFTAIN ANNOUNCES HIS WILLINGNESS TO HALT FIGHTING DURING CONFERENCE.

CABINET MEETS FRIDAY

President Is Now Ready to Take Up Mexican Tangle With His Advisers.—Funston Sends Troops to Brownsville.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Washington, Aug. 12.—General Villa has informed the United States government that he is willing to sign a truce of three months or more duration with his opponents, during which time a peace conference shall be held. President Wilson, returning from Cranshaw, N. H., reached the White House at 9:30 a. m. today, and expected to confer with Secretary Lansing.

Cabinet Meets Friday. It was announced at the White House that there would be no cabinet meeting tomorrow. The president has determined that pending matters in the various departments are not in shape for general discussion with his advisers as yet.

After his conference with Secretary Lansing, devoted chiefly to the Mexican situation and work of the Pan-American conference, President Wilson planned to see Secretary Garrison of the war department and Secretary Daniels of the navy to take up questions of national defense. Both secretaries were prepared to submit preliminary reports as to what army and navy officers believe is necessary to build up an adequate military and naval establishment.

The situation along the Mexican border in Texas, where raiders have attacked American ranchers, and several Americans have been killed recently, also was expected to figure in the conference with Secretary Garrison.

A mass of correspondence awaited the president at the White House upon his arrival and he went to work on this at once to clear his desk before his conference with Secretary Lansing.

Funston Moves Troops. General Funston reported today he had sent a battalion of the Ninth Infantry from Laredo to Brownsville, Texas. He made no request, however, for additional troops in response to Secretary Garrison's message of yesterday, saying that the mobile forces now on the border will be sent to Texas if needed.

The American troops killed near Mercedes last Tuesday night in a battle with raiders was private Leo C. Windhaus, a troop from General Funston's 14th Cavalry, and private George Windhaus, a troop from General Funston's 14th Cavalry, and private George Windhaus, a troop from General Funston's 14th Cavalry.

Expect Developments. Washington, Aug. 12.—With the return here today of President Wilson and Secretary Lansing important developments were looked for in connection with plans for pacification of Mexico.

War department officials today awaited word from Major General Funston as to whether he needed additional troops along the border to deal with Mexican raiders. Upon his report will depend whether the United States forces there will be strengthened.

WINS COURT AWARDS AFTER 7 YEAR SUIT

Green Bay Man Gets Check for Thirty-Six Thousand Today After Long Litigation.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Marinette, Aug. 12.—Benjamin Brill of Green Bay, has received through the attorney, J. A. McKinstry, of this city, a check for $36,000 in final settlement of a litigation which has been pending against Paine-Webber company of Boston since 1908, the result of alleged diversion of funds by the company's Marinette agent, William F. Jones.

The settlement came after two trials had been held before the United States district court after the attorney for the Paine-Webber company, and another decision on motion for the latter motion ended the litigation and the $36,000 is the amount recovered by the principal interest and costs claimed by Brill.

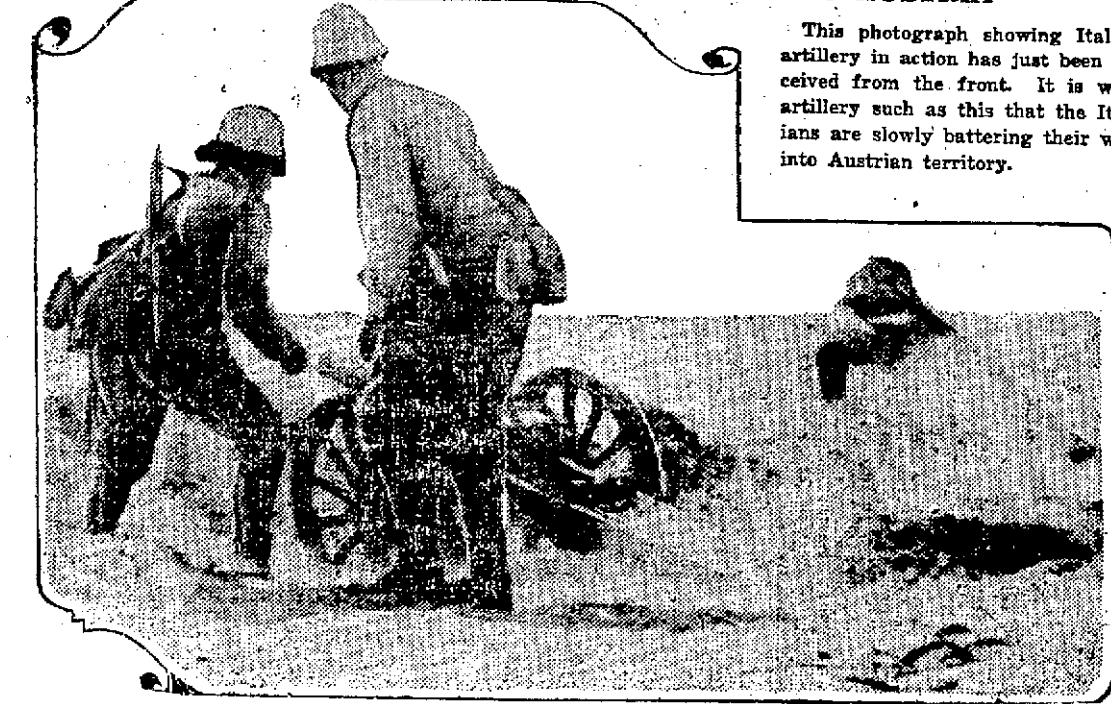

Eleven similar cases involving thousands of dollars are pending against the Paine-Webber company and will undoubtedly be settled in the same way owing to this decision.

OFFICER'S WIFE A SUICIDE; FEARED WAR

Woman Supposed to be Wife of Officer Stationed at Mexican Border Line Takes Poison at Boarding House.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Chicago, Aug. 12.—Mrs. Caroline Greene, whose husband is said to be a lieutenant in the regular army stationed on the Mexican border, took poison today, but is said to have a fighting chance of recovery. Her father is said to be George W. West, a ranchman of El Campo, Texas. Greene's full name could not be learned by the police. At the house where Mrs. Greene boarded, it was said she worried over possibilities of war with Mexico in which her husband would be exposed to death.

APPEAL TO AMERICA TO STOP MUNITIONS

Jews in Germany Draft Dramatic Appeal to United States to Stop Sale of Shells.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Berlin, wireless, August 12.—The following was given out for publication today by Overseas News agency: "The association of Jews in Germany has issued a dramatic appeal to America drafted by Dr. Levi, a rabbi, for distribution in neutral countries. The appeal based on fact that American shells are thrown by Russians into Polish towns believed to harbor Germans, says: "Europe stands in flames. Across the ocean America alone lives at peace. She hears not the thunder of cannon. A faithful rain of gold is falling on the land enjoying golden peace. "We cry out to America: Thousands of thy most loyal and industrious citizens come from towns being destroyed by shells which thou art sending instead of gifts of money, once sent back to childhood homes from Libau to Lemberg. Thou sendest iron shells to the army of the Czar. Thou givest iron for gold. Thou hast peace, thou art not fighting for existence. We implore thee to listen to this appeal."

WANT COTTON PLACED ON CONTRABAND LIST

Public Meeting Held in London to Urge Action Indorsed by Manchester Guardian.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] London, Aug. 12.—The Manchester Guardian denies the implication that the meeting in London last night to urge the government to declare cotton contraband was prompted by commercialism in that the cotton interest would benefit by such a declaration. "If Manchester men have a policy, it is not a trade protectionist reason, but a broadly national grounds," the paper says. "Our own views on the matter are these: Cotton is more necessary for purposes of war than any other article of commerce, and it passes our comfort to make it ever come to be put on the free list." The Guardian deprecates the suggestion that England should buy the American crop if cotton should be declared contraband. It says that in case a loss must be sustained the American growers should be the chief sufferers. When cotton was contraband during the civil war, it adds, but brought a supply to relieve the famine in Manchester.

JURY FINDS FATHER WAS KILLED BY SON

Julius Horms Is Charged With Murder of His Father Tuesday Night at Green Bay.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Green Bay, Aug. 12.—A coroner's jury this afternoon at Bonduel returned a verdict finding Albert Horms, a wealthy farmer, come to his death by blows from a club in the hands of his nineteen-year-old son, Julius Horms, and two other sons, Paul, eighteen, and Jappard, sixteen, aided Julius in taking the body in a carriage to a trestle three miles away, and buried it onto the Northwestern tracks. District attorney Andrews charged Julius with murder. Julius confessed to the brutal murder, the district attorney said. According to Andrews, the farmer was murdered in his barn on his farm, following a quarrel with Julius, Tuesday night. After darkness the body was taken to the overhead bridge and dumped onto the tracks, an effort to make it appear that the farmer's horse had run away and that he had fallen out of the carriage. The father and mother were cousins and most of the children are teenagers. There are six children in the family.

PREPARE TO RAISE STEAMER EASTLAND

Four Huge Pumps Are Employed in Sucking Water from Hull of Death Ship.

Chicago, Aug. 12.—Four huge pumps resumed sucking the water from the half submerged hull of the steamship Eastland today to lighten the weight of the ship before dericks are sent to work to place the boat on an even keel. Officials hope to have the ship raised by tomorrow. A hundred policemen lined the bridges, keeping the crowds and curious away from the scene of the disaster of three weeks ago. The righting of the ship is expected to release a number of bodies, and coffins are waiting to receive them.

TWO ARMY AVIATORS FALL FROM HEIGHTS

Quartermaster Knox Is Killed and His Aid Is Fatally Injured When Machine Falls 500 Feet.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Port Stillo, Okla., Aug. 12.—Quartermaster Captain George H. Knox of the first aerial squadron, U. S. A., was killed and Lieutenant R. B. Sutton, his aid, probably was fatally injured today when an airplane in which they were flying fell 500 feet. The squadron just been transferred from California. The officers came to Fort Stillo last Tuesday and since then have been conducting experiments on the army reservation. Upon the arrival of the aerial squadron several members said they considered the various currents of air existing in and near the Wichita Mountains were extremely dangerous. The aviators ascended about nine this morning. They had been aloft but a few minutes when the airplane suddenly was observed to be falling. Knox and his aid, who were desperate efforts to control the machine. Knox was killed instantly. Sutton was hurled to the army hospital, where an operation was performed in an effort to save his life. The exact cause of the accident has not been ascertained.

TROUBLE OVER LABOR IS SEETHING AGAIN

Workmen in Torpedo Company Unexpectedly Walk Out Today—Locomotive Company Replies

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Bridgeport, Conn., Aug. 12.—The labor troubles in this city and nearby towns which apparently have become more composed and gave promise of amicable adjustment, have suddenly assumed a more serious aspect. A walk-out of some seventy machinists and their helpers at the plant of the Lake Torpedo Boat company in this city, and a threatened strike today of about 600 machinists at the Parrott Foundry and Machine company's plant in Ansonia, were disturbing features of the situation. The walk-out of the Lake Torpedo Boat company came unexpectedly yesterday as it had been announced some time before that the company's answer to the demands of the men for an advance in wages which was to have been delivered yesterday, by agreement for twenty-four hours. The reply of the Locomotive Company of America to the demand of about eight hundred of its employees for a raise in wages and pay, was unexpected today. Employees of the American and British company, and the Standard Manufacturing company, have voted to present demands, the refusal of which, it was said, would mean a strike.

SAVED FROM NOOSE AT ELEVENTH HOUR

Texas Sentenced to Hang For Murder Has Execution Delayed Thirty Minutes Before Time Set.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Fort Worth, Texas, Aug. 12.—Thirty minutes before the execution was to be carried out today, the clerk of the court of criminal appeals in Austin, telephoned to the sheriff to delay the execution until further notice. A writ of habeas corpus had been filed before the court, questioning Meyer's insanity. Meyer was a switchman, who shot A. W. Montague, superintendent of terminals for the Texas & Pacific railroad here on January 2 last. Some time before the shooting the superintendent had discharged Meyer who claimed he was unable to get work with any other railroad, because of Montague's influence. On account of Meyer's claims, several persons, active in the socialist party here, had taken active interest in his case. A feature of Meyer's imprisonment has been his apparent lack of concern over his fate. He has a wife and several children in Little Rock, Ark. Montague's predecessor, a superintendent, was shot and killed by a dissatisfied employe a few years ago.

ITALY IS SHORT ON GRAIN FOR THE YEAR

Latest Official Report Shows Plight of the Warring Nation—To Purchase in America.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Rome, Aug. 12.—The latest official report regarding the harvest shows that Italy needs 12,000,000 quintals of grain for her consumption until next year. A quintal is approximately 220 pounds. Most of this grain, it is argued, will be purchased in America.

OHIO TRAINS CRASH; FOUR PERSONS DEAD

Score Badly Injured When Train Hits Excursion Passenger Carrying K. P. Delegation.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 12.—Four persons were killed and more than a score injured, some seriously, early today when a heavily loaded train crashed into a special train heading a party of members of the Knights of Pythias lodge of Mount Sterling, Ohio, many of them accompanied by their wives or other members of their families. The accident occurred at Orient station on the Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern railroad, fourteen miles south of Columbus. The excursionists were returning from the annual outing at Cedar Point, near Sandusky. The excursion train had stopped to take water, when the freight crashed into it. The dead: Logan Holler, Pickaway county farmer, Margaret Stollars, Thonny Neff, and Thad Mitchell, all of Mount Sterling, and that immediate vicinity. Several of the injured including Mrs. Thonny Neff, wife of one of those killed, are believed to be fatally injured. Members of the freight crew said they knew the excursion train was ahead of them, but understood their orders gave the freight train a clear track. Among the seriously hurt is Professor Finley of Williamsport, Pennsylvania college, who has a broken right arm and internal injuries.

VENIZELLOS RETURNS TO ATHENS TODAY

Former Premier Whose Party Won Political Victory Over King Arouses People to High Pitch.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Athens, Aug. 12.—Eleutherios Venizelos, former premier of Greece, who resigned in 1912, returned to Athens today. Constantine's disapproval of his policy in favor of the entente allies, returned to Athens today. The announcement of his policy is awaited with greatest eagerness, but this may not be made until after the king's speech has been delivered at the opening of parliament on August 16. Mr. Venizelos announced his resignation from public life shortly after his resignation owing to his disagreement with the king. His party was victorious in the general elections of June, however, and last month he was quoted as saying he would accept the call of the people and resume the leadership of the liberals.

HAITIANS TO ELECT A PRESIDENT TODAY

Former Executive Will Be Chosen By National Assembly to Succeed Guillaume.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Port au Prince, Haiti, Aug. 12.—A president of Haiti, a successor to the late President Guillaume, who was killed recently in a revolution under the leadership of Dr. Rosolvo Bobo, is to be elected today by the national assembly. General Dartignave was today elected president of the Haitian republic by the national assembly. Calm prevailed. General Dartignave received a majority of 22 out of the 116 votes cast. The voting for the candidates was as follows: General Dartignave, majority of 78 out of the 116 votes; Emmanuel Thezan, 5; for Dr. Rosolvo Bobo, 3.

BANK TELLER STICKS TO ROBBERY ACCOUNT

Cedar Rapids Teller Implicated in Theft of Fortune Swears Money Recovered Was a Loan.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Cedar Rapids, Aug. 2.—Leo Perrin, who last night repudiated the confession which officials of the Cedar Rapids National bank announced they had obtained from him that he robbed the bank of $21,070 today, said firmly to his story. He insisted that the $21,000 which bank officials recovered yesterday was obtained through a loan. James Gagny of Chicago, a former Cedar Rapids resident, was the man who loaned him the money, Perrin said. On receipt of this information Chicago police were asked to look for Gagny. Detective Cameraa of the Cedar Rapids police left last night to aid in the search. Officials of the bank said today that upon the story told by Gagny if he is found, depends further action in the case.

BIG CROWD AT FAIR DESPITE THE WEATHER

HOVERING CLOUDS FAIL TO KEEP ENTHUSIASTIC VISITORS AWAY—CONTINUE JUDGING.

INTEREST RUNS HIGH

Bower City Band Furnishes Excellent Music This Afternoon.—Harness Races by Prominent Prospects.

A large crowd greeted the third day attractions today at the big Janesville fair, despite the prevailing weather conditions that were threatening all the morning. The interest taken by Beloit and Evansville people was clearly manifested by the crowds that swarmed from the trains and interurban cars during the forenoon. Today being Beloit and Evansville day, accounts largely for the big delegations from both cities.

More judging was in evidence today than yesterday, and there seemed to be little let-up, because of the great amount of entries. The judging of the driving teams took place at ten o'clock this morning in front of the grandstand, and seldom before has there been so gorgeous an array of beautiful horses hitched to driving buggies as was noticeable today.

The concession line was fairly busy, and prepared to meet an added business rush this afternoon when the delegations had all assembled for the three harness races and other attractions. In the first race this afternoon, which was a three-year-old or under trot, over the half mile track for a purse of $400, Bright Patch loomed up as a probable winner, while Robert M. C. looked to be a promising prospect. In the second race, the 2:24 trot, Alice Marmore, Binsworthy and Gay Patch looked good, while in the last race, the 2:17 pace, Nasturtium, Silver Moon and Josephine Empress were ruling as favorites.

Crowds Enthusiastic. It would appear that every fair visitor becomes an enthusiastic booster after he has looked over the grounds and displays and witnessed one or two heats of the races. The grounds, the buildings, the exhibits, the grandstand, the side-shows, the stands, the concessions are all favorably commented on and the general impression is that the Janesville fair is one of the coming fairs of southern Wisconsin, and that next year will witness even more displays and better exhibits than at present.

The Races. By two the grandstand was two-thirds full with a long line up on the inner field. In the first heat of the colt race, a trot on the half mile track, Forrest Bingen, a black horse, was first; Bright Patch, from the Indiana 1:55 horse farm, second; Sussie Zombry, third; Sweet Pay Day, Robt. McMillan, Lammeline and Hume finishing in the order named. Robert M. C., was drawn at the end of the heat.

The 2:24 Trot. With sixteen starters the first heat of the 2:24 trot was a long time in getting off. Falcon Boy was given the flag in this heat and went out, leaving fifteen contenders to fight out the next two heats. Rayjovia was first, the rest finishing in the following order: Miley, Alice Marmore, Dolly Dimple, Tom C. Webb, Claire Tramp, Gay Patch, Mr. Ross, Mire McKinney, Queen Molly, Len Fire, Baron Lindhurst, Clark Binsworthy.

Program for Today. Today was Beloit and Evansville day at the fair. Judging of dairy cattle and of harness and saddle horses in front of the grandstand occupied the attention of many this morning at the fair. Hundreds of people flocked to the grounds during the morning, many of them having journeyed to this city on the early morning interurban cars from Beloit or on the early trains from Evansville.

Judge H. G. Van Pelt's cow demonstration at five-thirty this afternoon proved of interest to a good sized crowd. The farmers taking special interest in this event. A boys' barrel race, in which three prizes of three dollars, two dollars and one dollar were offered for first, second and third places respectively, was held shortly after. Three harness races were again on the program, with entirely different horses, numbering seventy-five, participating. The free attractions again were pleasing. Bower City band will furnish music for the day. In the morning at 9:30 o'clock, the students' rope contest will be the procedure. The rope contest is something new, and is a special feature.

In addition to the speeches, free attractions and three harness races will be offered. A big live stock parade at one-thirty is scheduled.

VAN HISE IN SENATE OPPOSES REDUCTIONS

UNIVERSITY PRESIDENT APPEARS BEFORE UPPER HOUSE TO DISCOURAGE BUDGET CUTTING.

AUTO LIGHT DIMMING

New Bill Passes Senate to Lower Lights as Cars Approach and Also When Parked on Street.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Madison, Aug. 12.—President Chas. R. Van Hise of the University of Wisconsin criticized the administration's proposed reduction in university appropriations of $265,000 before the senate this morning as seriously retarding the work of many departments. Dr. Allen, appearing on behalf of Governor Thompson, justified the reductions by saying that no activities were crippled and that the institution is really receiving more than it got two years ago. He recited numerous alleged defects in university administration found in the recent survey.

Senator Stevens' bill restoring the former rate of interest in relation to taxes for the state at fifteen per cent, which was reduced by this legislature to ten per cent, passed the senate. Men who buy up tax certificates were referred to in discussion as "sharks." Senator Akeley was against the bill and he was opposed to helping dealers in tax certificates who make money out of the misfortune of others. The senate adopted the substitute by Senator Bennett providing for the dimming of lights on automobiles when approaching other vehicles and shutting off lights when the car is standing still on any street or road in every city and village in the state. The senate killed the assembly substitute on the same subject. Senator Burke introduced the bill in the interest of a patent dimming device. The assembly spent its time in ceasing up the odds and ends for contemplation awaiting receipt of the university budget of the senate.

AVIATORS AT NIGHT GUARD FROM ATTACK

French in Paris Enforce Laws Against Having Lights—Duties of Aviation Corps at Night.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Paris, Aug. 12.—Night scouts of the aviation corps draw many spectators to the heights of Montmartre, who linger there the hour waiting for them, dart across the sky of Paris like giant fire flies. Among these are men who watch the lights of the sky, and when they see a light, they inspect house-tops and mansards with field glasses. They are detectors looking out for night signals. Every light which they should be no light is promptly run down. Hundreds of cases, it has turned out, that the rule against lights visible through the exterior has been infringed through heedlessness. Five cases of really suspicious lights have been discovered thus far, and their authors arrested and properly dealt with.

This is only one of the responsibilities devolving upon the police during the war, in addition to the maintenance of order and the chase of criminals. They must turn out on the street gas lamps and warn the inhabitants when the approach of German aeroplanes or Zeppelins is announced, occasionally being obliged to climb four or five flights of stairs in order to remonstrate with some tenant who is unaware that light shines down from his windows into the streets.

A considerable number of the "plain clothes men" are detailed to watch everywhere for people spreading exaggerated and harmful reports regarding military operations. It is to be expected that the man who is talking never knows whether the person seated beside him in the tramcar, the subway, the cafe, the cinema, the bar, appears to be or a secret service man, as difficult to get anything out of him as it is to recognize him, the model French detective being closer to the system. They are sometimes seen taking into custody loud talking amateur strategists, and frequently the guilty man proves to be a person subject to military service who has dodged duty. Belgians sometimes as well as French. Until recently the "apaches," the street ruffians of Paris, had been little heard from since the mobilization. Those who were neither bashed or sent to the front seem to have been succeeded by a younger, but quite as promising generation of night prowlers. Frequent peaches, blades with knives and revolvers in the quarters of Montmartre most frequented by the class have made it necessary for the police to take special measures and many raids have been made upon suspicious resorts.

NAMES NEW ARRIVAL ASQUITH KITCHENER

Marinette Farmer Will Christen Son According to His Sympathies.—Neighbor's Son Named Kaiser Wilhelm.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Marinette, Aug. 12.—"I guess that will hold him for a while," said George J. Weston, a former Aurora, Illinois man who settled on a farm in Marinette county, Wisconsin, recently, as he announced his new son has just been christened Asquith Kitchener Weston.

The same day that Weston's son was born he read that his old neighbor, Michael Morkus, had christened his first born Kaiser Wilhelm Morkus. Weston is a native of England and a strong supporter of John Bull. Joy over the arrival of his son faded until he conceived the idea of tacking two English war notables' names onto his new born.

"Morkus will be yelling for an em-bargo when he hears this," said Weston.

FUNERAL OF HAITI VICTIM HELD TODAY IN NEW YORK

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] New York, Aug. 12.—The funeral of Seaman William Gompers, nephew of Samuel Gompers, who was killed while serving in Haiti, will be held from the naval hospital in Brooklyn, at two o'clock today. The body will be at the naval cemetery at Cypress Hill.

CAPITAL OF SLAVS GOAL OF GERMANS

VON HINDENBURG'S ARMY HAS ADVANCED TO WITHIN 300 MILES OF PETROGRAD.

DEFENSE LINE WAVERS

Fortress of Kovno Must Be Evacuated Sooner or Later, Which Will Open Up Road into Interior of Russia.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] London, Aug. 12.—The Baltic flank of the German army under Field Marshal Von Hindenburg has virtually attained the banks of the river Dvina, between Riga and Dvinsk, with Petrograd less than three hundred miles away in a direct line. Thence southward the line sweeps west with the Russian fortress of Kovno still holding out, but next week may see a great battle in the road toward the Russian capital.

Defense Line Wavers. The second line of defense, upon which the Russians proposed to halt back after abandoning Warsaw, has all the appearance of having been rendered untenable and the British and Russian press are beginning to see in the Austro-German plan a plunge deeper into Russia with Petrograd as the goal.

In the meantime the Russian rear guards are fighting desperately, especially in the critical Dvina region and Kovno, to capture which the Germans are making a long sacrifice of men. It seems strange now that the Germans propose no great demonstrations in the west, but intend, rather, to press to the utmost their so far brilliantly successful Russian campaign, on the theory that conditions in France and Belgium are such that neither the French nor the British immediately will attempt a general offensive.

Interest in Dardanelles. During the lull in activity on the front in France and Belgium, the British public is looking to the Dardanelles for a relief. Russia badly needs, though the task of opening the straits remains a difficult problem, which some think may only be solved by change in the Balkan situation.

Both Germany and the entente powers are exerting the hardest pressure on Bulgaria as that country is considered to be the key to the situation.

AIRMEN DROP BOMBS ON GERMAN CITIES

French Aviators Kill Eight Civilians in Attack on Zweibruecken and St. Ingbert.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] London, Aug. 12.—A wireless received here today from Berlin said French aviators dropped bombs on Zweibruecken and St. Ingbert, killing or wounding several civilians. The property damage was small. Eight persons were killed and many injured from an aeroplane. St. Ingbert is about twelve miles west of Zweibruecken. It is near Saarbruecken, which was bombarded by French aeroplanes on Monday.

PANKHURST FARM JOB GOES TO MARY SMITH

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Chicago, Aug. 12.—Mary Smith, aged 23 years, of fair complexion, was selected today for $10,000 job on the McKinney county farm of "The Jimmie" Pankhurst and Mrs. Pankhurst.

Miss Smith is an orphan, also a trained nurse, and at first was reluctant to accept the position which carries three dollars a week and a bonus of $10,000 upon death of Pankhurst, because of publicity attending it.

The selection was made from hundreds of applicants by Clark Crawford, of bureau of immigration, to whom the task was delegated by the lonely old couple on the farm, who wanted someone who would be their sympathetic companion to the end of chapter.

CATTLE MADE BLIND BY INFECTED SERUM

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Lansing, Mich., Aug. 12.—Puzzled by a mysterious disease which is killing cattle in Saginaw county, members of the state live stock sanitary commission were confronted with another new problem today when a report was received from Standish, Arenac county, that cattle in that vicinity are being stricken blind. Inspectors have been sent to Standish to diagnose this new malady. It is the opinion of the state live stock sanitary commission that serum sent to Saginaw county from Chicago may have contained some infection that federal authorities have placed a temporary quarantine on cattle in Saginaw county.

EDUCATIVE CAMPAIGN ON TAXES IS URGED

Expert Declares Most Tax Systems Are Radically Wrong and Need a Remedy.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
San Francisco, Aug. 12.—An educative movement for reform in taxation, national in its scope, was advocated by Samuel H. Howe, vice-president of the National Tax Association, when he addressed last night before the ninth annual conference of that body.
If the ideal of equality of burden in taxation is to be realized in any considerable degree, most tax systems must be radically changed, Mr. Howe said.

The glittering generalities of political platforms formulated not infrequently with little or no knowledge of fundamental principles or of the real facts of taxation, and too often for the sole purpose of winning votes, tempt now-a-days much more influential in shaping tax laws, than the desire to distribute the burden among the citizens upon some equitable plan, he declared.
There were no substantial agreement among advocates of tax reform, he explained, that faculty or ability should measure the obligations of taxation. The general property tax as a means of equitable taxation was a complete failure and needed amendment so as to permit classification. A tax upon inheritances was the least objectionable of all taxes, he said. That upon consumable articles is largely shifted to the consumers, including consumers of public service. There were important primary propositions, he thought, that the general public should know. Legislators, over voters should realize the importance of choosing tax officials qualified for their positions who should be given a tenure of office that will insure them to remain in the service and such rewards as will compare favorably with reasonable rewards in private service. There should be also, he urged, a centralization of power and responsibility in a few responsible bodies—which would be "up keeping with the centralization of the control of private business."
"But to secure such a reformation, the people must know. Legislatures must be inspired by a public demand for reformed laws, and preliminary to getting the desired help, there must be public education on the subject."

DE FOREST FAMILY GAVE FIVE TO WAR

Large Picture, on Exhibition at Kimball's, of Five Brothers Who Fought in War of '61.

A picture of five brothers of the Jacob De Forest family, is on exhibition at Frank D. Kimball's furniture store, with a short history of their service in the service of the North, during the Civil War. It is an unusual circumstance that one family should furnish five boys, all of whom were officers for the army.
The picture is beautifully framed and is to be sent to the Historical Society hall, at Schenectady, New York, their old home. It was framed by O. L. De Forest, who lives just west of Jamesville. The picture of each of the boys, in full uniform, is accompanied by a short biography reaching up to the time he left the ranks.
The history of each man is given as follows:
John J., second lieutenant, July 19, 1862; promoted to first lieutenant Feb. 1, 1863, and to captain, June 13, 1863; discharged on account of physical disability incurred in service, and died on May 25, 1886. Promoted from the ranks.
Jacob, lieutenant-colonel, Dec. 20, 1861; wounded at battle of Seven Pines, Va., May 31, 1862; promoted to colonel, July 19, 1862; discharged Sept. 1, 1864, on account of physical disability incurred in service.
William F., sergeant, is borne upon the muster-roll of company M, second regiment, Massachusetts volunteers cavalry; enlisted on May 25th, 1862, and mustered into service of United States on Feb. 26, 1862, discharged on Sept. 4, 1864, cause of wounds, as sergeant.
Bartholomew S., first lieutenant, Aug. 20, 1862; promoted to first lieutenant, Aug. 20, 1862; promoted to captain, Dec. 24, 1863; wounded at battle of Gettysburg, Va., June 3, 1864; discharged on account of wounds received in action; appointed to second lieutenant in third regiment, New York State militia, May 15, 1865, and served as private in the twenty-fifth New York S. M. and was in service three months; afterwards enlisted in the 81st regiment and was promoted from the ranks.
The picture is marked "In Memoriam" and is presented to the Historical Society Hall, of Schenectady, N. Y., their old home and that of their ancestors for three hundred years by the living member of the family, O. L. De Forest, of Jamesville, Rock county, Wisconsin, 1915. At the top of the picture is the inscription "War is Hell," Gen. W. T. Sherman, U. S. A., records, 1861-1865, sons of Jacob and Anna, Scherhorn DeForest, 1777-1882, Schenectady, New York.

WILLIAM MASON WILL RETAIN HIS OFFICE

Jamesville Man Assured His Services as Game Warden Are Most Satisfactory.

Despite the fact that the fish and game warden's department is to be thoroughly reorganized and many changes made, William Mason of this city who has been a warden for the past five years, has been notified that his services have proven so satisfactory that he will be retained. Mr. Mason spends the majority of his time at work in Rock and Jefferson county although during the winter part of the season he is sent to the northern part of the state. The old fish and game warden's department will be under direct charge of Mr. Barber who with Nevins and Woodcock, comprise the new commission created by the present legislature. Mr. Mason was notified that at later dates there would be frequent meetings of the game wardens of the state at which the business of the department is to be discussed and changes contemplated explained. One of the laws that is to be rigidly enforced this fall is open water shooting. The line of the shore grasses is clearly defined and hunters are warned against seeking to evade the law by discovering a few rushes out in the lake and using them as an excuse for open water shooting. Mr. Mason is anxious to have no trouble from this source and would prefer not to make any arrests.

FORMER JAMESVILLE WOMAN DIES AT ROCKFORD HOSPITAL.

Mrs. Nellie Schubach, formerly a resident of Jamesville, passed away Wednesday morning at St. Anthony's hospital in Rockford. She leaves one son, Lester, Dayton, Rockford, and also two sisters. Funeral services will be held at the Berkey Undertaking rooms in Rockford at two o'clock Saturday afternoon.

A UNIVERSAL FOOD. Following Nature's Footsteps.

"I have a boy, two years old, weighing forty pounds and in perfect health who has been raised on Grape-Nuts and milk.
"This is an ideal food and evidently furnishes the elements necessary for a baby as well as for adults. We have used Grape-Nuts in large quantities and greatly to our advantage."
One advantage about Grape-Nuts food is that it is partially pre-digested in the process of manufacture. The starch contained in the wheat and barley is transformed into a form of sugar by the same method as this process is carried out in the human body; that is, by the use of moisture and long exposure to moderate warmth, which grows the diastase in the grains, and with long baking makes the remarkable change from starch to sugar.
Therefore, the most delicate stomach can handle Grape-Nuts and the food is quickly absorbed into the blood and tissue, certain parts of it going directly to building and nourishing both body and brain. "There's a Reason."

MASONIC RITES FOR GEORGE CHITTENDEN

Funeral Was Held Tuesday Morning at Grave in Oak Hill Cemetery.—Death Due to Heart Failure.

Funeral services for the late Dr. George G. Chittenden, fifty-six years a resident of Jamesville, were conducted at ten o'clock Tuesday morning at the grave in Oak Hill cemetery by the Masonic order of this city, of which organization the deceased was a loyal member. A. E. Matheson delivered a few remarks, after which the remains were lowered into the final resting place. The pallbearers were: E. E. Peirce, Keller, Edden and Powell, and W. H. Hizer, all of this city.
Dr. George G. Chittenden was born in this city August 1st, 1855, living here until four years ago, when he went west for his health. He attended Beloit college, Wisconsin university at Madison, and Rush Medical college in Chicago, receiving a degree in medicine. Following his schooling, he returned to this city to practice. He was thrice married, the first time to Frances Larned of New York, a daughter of Dr. Larned, Mrs. A. H. Jones of Los Angeles, California, was born to this union. Mrs. Chittenden passed away shortly after, and in 1898, the deceased was united in marriage to Nettie Lawrence, the third time in Venetia, Wash. Dr. Chittenden and his family, resided on North Academy street for many years, the doctor having his office in the east wing of the building. After the last marriage, he moved to Washington, where he practiced until his death which was instantaneous. He was a member of the M. W. A., Masonic order, and Beavers, and had been the district and grand president and a director of the Twisp Commercial bank.
Besides a widow, he leaves one daughter, Mrs. J. Jones of Los Angeles, and a nephew, George, of Washington, D. C. The former two named accompanied the remains east, and will return in about a week.

COMING M'HENRY COUNTY FAIR

Chicago Daily News Band of Seventy-five Pieces Will Be One of the Main Attractions at the McHenry County Fair, Thursday, August 26th.

We have been advised that the McHenry County Fair Association officers have succeeded in securing the services of The Chicago Daily News Boys' Band as an added feature attraction for the fair on Thursday. The band is composed of musicians ranging in ages from eight to sixteen years. They are a well drilled organization and can make more harmonious music than their size and age would indicate.
Woodstock, Harvard and Des Plaines bands will also appear on the fair grounds at Woodstock during Fair week, and good music in the Grand Stand each and every afternoon is assured.

In looking over the attractions scheduled for the fair we find many features. The Ballroom Act of Hutchinson is far superior to ordinary ballroom acts. The quality of his act is established by reason of being repeatedly booked at the Canadian Exposition, Minneapolis, Iowa, and many other State Fairs. The Free Act will appear daily in front of the Grand Stand.

Ball games have been arranged for each day, games starting at 10 A. M. Every morning a horse race will be run. Free Act will appear daily in front of the Grand Stand.

On Friday, a special Ford Automobile Race is planned for and entries have been made from Elgin, Des Plaines and many points in McHenry County.

Commercial Club Day. Friday has been selected by various Commercial Organizations within a radius of forty miles of Woodstock as their day to visit the fair. The Woodstock Club will close their stores this day and will accept their stores accordingly and join the happy crowds at the fair.

The Machinery and Automobile Exhibits are worrying the fair officials because of the extra large amount of space, Wm. C. Bartlett as superintendent is requesting. An unusual demand has been made. A better plan is department. A first class and complete Automobile Show will be ready for the visitors, and approximately fifteen prominent manufacturers of automobiles will have beautiful and complete displays of all models.

Entries have already been received by the Secretary in the various departments, and the largest exhibits in history have been promised by the superintendents. Horse racing this year, although confined perhaps to a more local territory will be high class, and there are some very good entries received to date, with every indication that each race will be filled as promised on the program.

A visit to the McHenry County Fair at Woodstock this year will prove both profitable and pleasurable. With good weather permitting roads leading to Woodstock will present a steady stream of pleasure seekers bound for the fair. The Chicago & Northwestern Railroad is preparing to announce special train service on all the connections for Woodstock extra stops will be made for accommodation and extra equipment carried on all the trains to handle the crowd.

BOWER CITY BAND IN FAIR CONCERT

Popular Organization Will Give Program of Pieces Tonight at Court House Park.

NEW TYPE OF STANDARD TO BE TESTED HERE SOON

This morning, Mayor Fathers and Councilman E. Cummings made arrangements for the installation of a new style light standard to be tested on the streets here within the near future. The new standard is of a heavier type than the one now stationed at Main and Milwaukee streets and is called the "capitol." It is about three feet higher than the colonial style standard and has a different light reflector.

THREE YEAR OLD BOY IS DROWNED NEAR HIS HOME

Albion, Aug. 11.—Master Richard Larson, son of Henry Larson, was drowned in Saunders Creek Monday. The little boy went down to the creek with his older brothers to play. Being small boys, they little thought of the danger their little brother would be in, so they went back to the house and left him. In the afternoon the mother became anxious about him and no trace could be had of him until they found his little body in the creek. Then a party of men came and dragged the creek until about eight o'clock, when the body was found about a quarter of a mile down stream. John Slaggs spotted a small foot tangled up in the willow bushes near the stream. Richard was born June fifteenth, 1912. Services were held at the East Koskonong church Monday afternoon, in torment being made there at that time. Friends and relatives extended their sympathy to the bereaved family.

Mrs. E. C. Mals is caring for her daughter, Mrs. Dayton Hibbard, at Walnut Street.

Mr. and Mrs. Ferd Drake have returned.

BOSTON RED SOX ADD TO LEAD BY TWO GAMES

Boston, Mass., Aug. 12.—Winning two games from St. Louis while Detroit lost to Washington Wednesday, the Red Sox improved their lead in the American league race. They won the first game, 11 to 3, by hard batting. St. Louis using five pitchers, one an inlander.

Leonard outpitched James in the second game, which was decided by a 2 to 1 score. Speaker's triple and James' wild pitch counted. Boston's first run and singles by Carrigan and Leonard, Hooper's sacrifice bunt and Scott's sacrifice fly produced the winning tally. Pratt's double and Howard's hit scored for St. Louis.

Cubs Check Brooklyn. Chicago, Ill., Aug. 12.—Chicago defeated Brooklyn on Wednesday and thereby prevented the visitors from making a clean sweep of the series. The locals made all their runs in the second inning of the first game. In this session they gathered four hits, one of which was a triple, and coupled with Dell's wild throw of McLarry's sacrifice, a base on balls and a sacrifice, took a lead which the Dodgers were unable to overtake. The visitors outbatted the locals, but Lavender was given fine support in the pinches.

Errors Aid Sox. Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 12.—Errors by Sheehan and Chung, which cost two runs, gave Chicago the victory over Philadelphia on Wednesday, 3 to 2. Benz kept the home team's hits scattered, except in the fifth and ninth innings. Benz did not issue a pass and he was given splendid support. Chicago playing without an error for the third successive game here.

WEDNESDAY'S RACES PROVE TO BE FAST IN STRAIGHT HEATS

King Dillard Wins the 2:13 Pace in Three Heat—Track in Per. Condition for Speedsters.

Straight heats and fast time in general marked Wednesday's program of racing at the fair, but in all of the heats there was not the sensational bunched finishes that developed in the racing on Tuesday. The track was never in better condition, for on Tuesday night it had been watered down and thoroughly rolled, making it lightning fast, sure for the horses and no dust to bother the spectators. The best race of yesterday was in the 2:13 pace, there being ten starters. The chestnut horse, King Dillard, by Hal Dillard, driven by J. Martin, had an easy time in this race, winning three straight heats over the mile track. The best time made was in the second heat, King Dillard stepping off the mile in 2:09½, being pushed hard by Grantmore, who for once made King Dillard exert himself. Grantmore pulled down second money, winning this position in straight heats, not being able to catch the flying Dillard on the last turn. The third heat, after placing fifth in the first heat, took the next two heats in third position.

Trouble was experienced in starting the big field of fourteen horses over the half mile track for the 2:19 trot and unexpected time was made in this race. Mrs. Boswell came home an easy winner, the lanky brown mare stepping off the mile in the second heat in 2:16½. This horse showed a clean pair of heels to the entire field and never was halted in the least from the start to the finish in the three heats. The mare is owned by C. A. Bachelor, Mable Riser, the fast mare owned by Thomas Siegel, who beat Mrs. Boswell at Monroe last year, showed her old faults and after one bad start, was withdrawn. Coming down the first quarter the horse turned around and the driver, Kordatsky, was unable to keep her on the track. The horse has not had enough training this year, for it was impossible to get her away to a good start. Direct Patch, of the famous Patch stables, took second money by going under the wire as second in the first heat, after coming in seventh the first heat. Kissinger, owned by Mrs. J. E. Palmer of La Crosse, took third money by placing second in the first heat. Valnon, a Portago horse, won third place in all three heats.

In the first race, the three-year-old or under pace, Minnie N., by Parole, owned by Rban Gibson, McCombe, Ill., took two heats and her best time was 2:16½, made the first heat over the half mile track. Tiowa, a Davenport, Iowa, "nag," took second and The Pointer Queen was third. Because of the straight heats the races were over shortly after five o'clock yesterday.

The summary for the races is as follows:

VACATION THOUGHTS.
This is vacation time. A period to rest and recuperate the tired brains of men and women, boys and girls, workers and idlers. A time to play. To wander away and seek the beauties of nature. The cool of the forest and wooded slopes, the streams and lakes, the smooth highway, all have their various attractions. In speaking of this period of the year the Christian Science Monitor says that "the time of holiday is here and all the northern world goes, if not a-maying, then something very like it, in mood and purpose. They go to rejoice in those impressive and pleasing forms which more than nature. For the moment they will consider the lilies that neither toil nor spin, and the fowls of the air that do not gather into barns. The refreshment that comes from such contact with the great world of out-of-doors is not a thing of mere change of thought, but rather of uplifting thought. For the true lover of nature the glory of the hills has never been the fairer reward. They become the heights by great men won and kept, significant of endeavor, which if uphill all the way is yet repaid at every turn by the broad horizon's grander view. The mountains, too, are types of permanence. Various as the waves of the sea, they are flung against the sky with as striking freedom as yet they stand firm. The light on them from hour to hour, the play of shine and shade, brings the effect of a flowing, changing beauty; yet these hills are as they were before human history began. Emerson heard the woods and hills say to men, fresh from the party caucus, 'So hot, my little sir? These types of something that endures the stress of years so readily rebuke the hurry and fear of humanity's mood. The holiday is, then, well named for a day.'"
At dawn and at evening time the mountains may become as if translucent to the sight. The light makes them appear grander than they are, more beautiful, less of the earth. Considered thus they become like great picture writings, aglow with higher meaning. Yet only bring that bring such ideas to them find them there. 'Though we travel through the world to find the beautiful, we must carry it with us or we find it not.' Those who live all the year in the face of some great mountain prospect sometimes fail to observe even the beauty, or miss the deeper interpretations. Here is admonition for the city-dweller who has to return all too soon from these scenes.
His thoughts may go with him, and even in the hall bedroom or in the busy office the heart may still dance with the daffodils, as Wordsworth saw, or climb and rest with the hills. Though the world of the city herd and huddle, there is woodland solitude in crowds, even as there is society in the desert. If at times the city seems the desert yet the man or woman who there abides at his post may feel the dawn on his forehead, and be in himself what he has discerned the mountain to be—enduring, strong, beautiful with a light that is not its own. The beauties of nature live for him, too, in the pages of the poets. No one who in the love of nature holds companionship with the men and women who have best known how to transcribe beauty to the printed page, need thirst for the rest beside still waters. There is no need of a prison make, for nothing can bind the influences of uplifting and refreshing thought."

WHERE HITCH COMES.
If the democratic majorities should heed the president's recommendation and provide for an increased military establishment, there will be no way to pay the bills save by an issue of bonds. The treasury is empty now. It was possible somewhat to juggle the figures to hide the actual deficit at the end of the fiscal year, but the daily treasury statement shows, at least to the initiated, the actual conditions. The general balance in the treasury amounts to only $67,000,000 of which $46,000,000 is on deposit in national banks and practically all the balance consists of subsidiary silver, coins and silver bullion, none of which is available to pay bills. It is merely the change which Uncle Sam must keep in his cash box. The deficit for last year, leaving out that on the Panama canal, exceeded $85,000,000. The deficit for this year, thus far, already amounts to $17,000,000, with the prospect of a deficit of $115,000,000 for this full fiscal year. The funds in national banks are being steadily withdrawn. This, it is stated, is in the interest of the federal reserve bank, but probably is merely to fill the depleted treasury cash box. In any event, it means a loss to the government of the two per cent interest which the national banks have been paying on these deposits, as the federal reserve bank will not pay interest even if there are funds to deposit in it. This condition of the government's finances means that the administration will be compelled soon to borrow money for ordinary expenses, that is to sell bonds. And it also means that there must be an increase of taxes. The additional taxes may be called "war taxes," although the United States is not at war, but they should be called "deficit taxes" and the people should realize that the necessity for them arises from democratic mismanagement.

This safety first movement certainly is making great headway. Even the cash register on the Eastland showed that some $47.57 had been safely transferred from the excursionists' pockets to the ship's treasury before the boat even started from the wharf.

That three billion bushels of wheat is a sign of genuine prosperity to say the least. Figure it out in dollars and cents and see what it amounts to. No one wonders now why the United States can afford so many motor cars.

To be or not to be? That is the question that bothers the minds of the statesmen of Europe with reference to the formation of the Balkan league and their possible entrance into the great war of ages.

There is a heap of speculation as to the real value of the flat currency of the Mexican republic—repúblicas would be better. They may be worth a few pennies one night and nothing the next day.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle suggests that the English soldiers be clothed in armor. Perhaps he remembers the tales he created of the Scottish army in his White Company and their prowess.

President Wilson is too busy enjoying his first vacation in three years to play at politics, with Mexico still insisting he give it attention and the European nations still in an excited state.

Haiti is evidently jealous of the attention that Mexico has been receiving. It would like a little of the limelight itself and the paternal hand of Uncle Sam to straighten its affairs out.

Janesville has demonstrated that it can hold a fair and that it will be a good one. The Nineteen Fifteen effort is better than the first attempt and next year's will be even better.

Many of our leading citizens are now preparing to make impressive appeals to the public as to their claims for being considered as presidential possibilities.

By the way, how about these busses running to and from the fair grounds? Do they not come under the state jitney law or is it not in effect yet?

One press dispatch refers to sixteen Texas rangers on the border. Has Texas been increasing its armament without notifying the world at large?

Friday is Janesville day at the fair so be sure that the total that pass the turnstiles represent a goodly portion of the city's population.

The governor is the guest of Janesville, Friday, so put on your best bib and tucker and give His Excellency a proper greeting.

Taking it all in all, vacation periods can not always be selected to suit the climatic conditions no matter what care is taken.

When Culebra Cut gets through sliding it will be time enough to start the real bragging about our Panama canal.

It is to be hoped that there is no specimen of an Eastland in our highly prized and "efficient" navy.

THE DAILY NOVELETTE.

The Little Cheater.
Lips are seldom as red as they're painted.
Look for a widow if one cries, 'she failed!'
Harold Whitbits had a great idea. "I'll hypnotize the widow and then propose," he thought. "It won't take my nerve then. I can hypnotize people. I used to when I was a boy." So that evening he said to her, as he sat on his end of the sofa and she sat demurely in the middle, Mrs. Weebles, just for fun, you know—tee hee—won't you let me try to hypnotize you?
"Oh, do," she agreed, for she was a woman who was in for anything, one of that kind.
"You are completely in my power, sleep, sleep," he commanded. Harold solemnly, and he passed his hands foolishly in front of her face. And lo, the fair girl's eyes closed and her head sank onto Harold's shoulder.
"Kiss me, I command you!" said Harold. And obediently she kissed him. Then with a start, half way through the kiss, she opened her lovely eyes.
"Where am I?" she cried, three quarters way through the kiss.
"You're here, engaged to marry me," cried Harold.
"This is so sudden!" she murmured, and never told him, though they lived happily for sixty-seven years afterwards, that she hadn't been hypnotized at all.

SNAP SHOTS

Sunday comes too often, but in other respects this is a pretty fair world.

Do not attempt impossibilities. Do not, at an instance, promise to make a woman happy.

Life is chiefly made up of foolish questions and unsatisfactory answers.

Any joke is funny if the man for whom you are working tells it.

While the women plan most of the parades, the men do practically all of the marching.

If a man is afraid to say it himself he nearly always asks a newspaper to do it for him.

If a man is sure a thing won't cost him any money, he generally is for it.

There are all kinds of chumps, including the one who has a ship tattooed on his arm.

An expert says birds spread disease. Perhaps he refers to the chicken and the chickenpox.

A New York man was arrested on suspicion of carrying a bomb when he was carrying home a can of mushrooms. Even at that, there is a question which is the most dangerous thing to do from morning until night excepting work.

There is only one harder thing to listen to than a soprano with a cold in the head and that is a phonograph with sand in the grooves.

Luke Bibbins of our town has got a sort of lucrative position on a city newspaper, and he doesn't waste a thing to do from morning until night excepting work.

There is an old saying that reading makes a full man and praps that's the reason so many husbands peruse the newspaper at the breakfast table.

The cheapest way to run a motorboat is to run it up on the bank and let the darn thing stay there.

The Day's Intentions.

The other day Ole Hanson had trouble with a bellicose dog that belonged to his neighbor, a Russian by the name of Havya Drenkolosky.

The Swede shot the dog as soon as he discovered that he was not friendly to him, and the sequel found lodging in a justice's court. Ole was pronounced interrogatories by the attorney for the prosecution he evinced a sense of justice in framing

"What sort of a fellow do you have, Mr. Hanson?" inquired the attorney.

"As var two-hole shot gun."

"Double-barrel?"

"Yes, das et."

"Well, don't you think you could have scared him away?"

"Ay might of Ay had not been scared so lak deekens massel."

"Why didn't you take the other end of the gun and scare him away?"

"Val, master lawyer, vy didn't de dog com for mae oder end first of he want to do det vay?"

The lawyer is still wondering if there weren't extenuating circumstances connected with the shooting.

WAR HAS BROUGHT WORK TO EVERY ONE WHO CARES TO LABOR

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

York, England, Aug. 12.—Even in the remotest villages the European war has brought the pressure of war-time business, and the workman who is not occupied to the limit of his endurance is idle from choice rather than from lack of opportunity.

The charcoal burners, for instance, were never so busy at their smoky forest occupation; they are scarcely brisk the charges in their ovens.

Enough for the makers of black powder. The osier beds which border hundreds of small streams in the interior of England are shown close for the first time, owing to the demand for osiers to make the baskets and cases in which shells are packed for transportation to the front.

Lumbermen and woodcutters find an unlimited demand for the stout English woods which are used to provide handles for trenching tools, hatchets, levers, and the multifarious implements of the army Engineers and Service Corps.

Everywhere men are in demand, and some old industries, well-nigh forgotten, are being revived. Several old lead, tin and copper mines which were ruined when steam transit brought cheap foreign ore to England are being re-opened.

BRAKEMAN WAS CURED.

F. A. Wootsey, a railroad brakeman of Jacksonville, Fla., writes: "I was down with kidney trouble and rheumatism so bad I could hardly get up when I sat down. I had a backache all the time and was almost tired of living. I saw Foley Kidney Pills advertised. I took some and after a short time I was thoroughly cured and am having no more trouble. They act promptly and help kidneys throw poisonous waste products out of the blood. Thousands have written similar letters."—W. T. Sherer, Druggist.

AT THE APOLLO.

"Cabiria" a Masterpiece.
Everyone who has ever seen a motion picture projected on the screen, anywhere should go to the Apollo theatre to see "Cabiria." D'Annunzio's classic, in celluloid. It is in a class by itself. It is more than the last word in motion picture art. It is a masterpiece production of a very great and wonderful scenic and poetic spectacle, staged as no other spectacle has ever been conceived and produced in the four walls of a theatre; for it is real; it is nature itself, and we must thank the wonderful invention of the twentieth century—the motion picture camera—which makes it possible for the world to see it in all its original grandeur and splendor. It is a historical vision of the third century B. C., depicting with wondrous detail the wars between Rome and Carthage, which ultimately resulted in the destruction of the latter. The title is taken from the name of the heroine, daughter of a Roman patrician living in Sicily. While she is still a child her father's home is destroyed by an eruption of Mt. Etna, and she is captured by Phoenician pirates and sold as a slave in Carthage, together with her nurse. A Roman spy saves her from being sacrificed to the fire of the god Moloch. Thereafter, through a vast and stupendous series of scenes, her adventures are concerned with the war between the two great republics, and the story is built around her career.

Ten thousand persons, thousands of horses, herds of cattle, camels, elephants, real tigers, strutting peacocks and flocks of doves were employed in the making of this marvelous production.

WOMAN'S PAGE

SIDE TALKS

BY RUTH CAMERON

SENTIMENTAL LEAST COMMON DENOMINATORS

A neighbor of ours has married again. The woman has married is totally unlike his first wife. Yet he was very happy with his first wife and he appears to be very happy with his second.

If he is satisfied with the one how could he have been so devoted to the other and vice versa, is, as usual, the question over which the neighborhood delights to make a game.

They Appeal To Different Sides Of His Nature.

Of course one answer is obvious enough—they appeal to different sides of his nature. Yet isn't there something more than that to the situation? Isn't it possible that these women, who to us appear so different, have some deeper likeness which we cannot see, of which even the husband may be unconscious, and yet which has helped attract him?

Someone advanced this idea the other day and thence we drifted into a discussion as to whether this least common denominator theory could be applied to our own past love affairs.

How about it, reader friends, have the people that have attracted you from time to time been the same or different types? And if they have been of apparently different types has there been some least common denominator of similarity among them all?

How Seldom We Marry Our Physical Ideal.

In looking back over my own experiences, ranging from the little boy in the fifth grade with the beautiful golden hair and blue eyes, to the man of the present, I find that I have never married my physical ideal. I have married a man who is the type of masculine good looks that I theoretically admire and only one possessed anything at all like this bill of features. That is another interesting thing about the matter, by the way, how seldom we fall in love with or marry the type of appearance we theoretically admire. An old friend of mine who always admired tall, thin, dark men, and who is absolutely satisfied, while the girl whose ideal was a thin face with deep-set grey eyes has married a rosy-cheeked, round-faced man with prominent brown hair. And she also appears quite content.

A Character Common Denominator.

To return to the main road: after diligent search I could find one least common denominator among all my memories—a certain reserve of character and quietness of manner.

In reminiscent investigation of this sort I think there is a tendency to confuse the people who have attracted one with the people who have repelled one. Quite a different thing, although it may ultimately result in mutual attraction, since the fact that someone admires you is a strong recommendation of their discrimination and good taste and makes you willing to become better acquainted and perhaps even paves the way to love. As someone has said, "Fill a woman full of self love and all that flows over will be love."

It is an interesting field for reminiscences. Taking out one's memory vignettes of the faces that once stirred one's heart has the same fascination as reading over old letters. Try it some day when you are in the mood for day dreaming.

Glimpses of Married Life

BY MRS. EVA LLOYD

Olive opened the bedroom door where Nell was bathing the baby, wide enough to admit her head. "Mrs. Ash has been to the doctor to get him to help."

She was visiting her, she said, and disappeared the evening of the big thunder storm. She had not seen her since. The doctor was naturally disturbed over this news and began inquiring around to find out if anyone had seen him. Some one suggested that she might be the ghost that knocked at Gorseley's house, but Mrs. Ash assured them she was dressed in black when she left the house.

"What does the doctor think of the situation?" asked Nell, putting the baby in the tub. "Now watch him splash! He throws water all over the room," said Nell proudly. "Or once Olive was oblivious of the baby's charms."

The doctor drove out to Gorseley's yesterday and inquired about his visitor and called at the nearby farm houses to learn if they had seen or heard her, but they had seen nothing and that they had been indifferent and never influenced the situation much," continued Nell excitedly. "That will mean a big increase in popularity to you when you suggest Olive, and in railroad facilities."

"I hope the family will be enjoyable. Did Dick say what the man was like? You see I am taking as much interest in I were a resident," she added, blushing.

"Why not? You belong to us, and what interests one interests all. There will be a fine new house for there is nothing suitable for the Jaynes—that's the name—to live in."

"Oh, did the doctor tell you Fairport is to have a big sugar beet factory? The land is sold and the contract let for the building. Dick is quite excited about it, says it will be a fine thing for the place. The man will of course move his family here, and if he is a hustler we may get electric light, sewer and decent sidewalks."

Mr. Frazer has ever taken much of a hand in local affairs. They are here for a few weeks in the summer to look over the situation, and their country home is so far away from town that they have been indifferent and never influenced the situation much," continued Nell excitedly.

"That will mean a big increase in popularity to you when you suggest Olive, and in railroad facilities."

"I hope the family will be enjoyable. Did Dick say what the man was like? You see I am taking as much interest in I were a resident," she added, blushing.

"Why not? You belong to us, and what interests one interests all. There will be a fine new house for there is nothing suitable for the Jaynes—that's the name—to live in."

He seems to be growing tired of being affectionate. It is not my per-side her body would have been found."

"I'll try to persuade the doctor to do nothing about it. If she's alive she will turn up when it comes time to pay the alimony, though she can't legally collect it. She has broken the terms of the contract. She should be obliged to work and have something to occupy her mind."

"Have you decided when you will be married?" she asked. "The exact time is not set, but it will be this fall some time, I think."

"What will the doctor's sister do?" was Nell's next question. "She is in a cottage around the corner from the doctor's house, and she will move in there. She has a small income of her own, you know, and there is an older sister, a maiden lady, who may come to live with her."

"You see the doctor was the youngest child and his mother died when he was a baby; so this sister is more like a mother, as she took care of the children." Olive rose to leave the room.

"Oh, did the doctor tell you Fairport is to have a big sugar beet factory? The land is sold and the contract let for the building. Dick is quite excited about it, says it will be a fine thing for the place. The man will of course move his family here, and if he is a hustler we may get electric light, sewer and decent sidewalks."

He seems to be growing tired of being affectionate. It is not my per-ing red. What shall I do? I would not have red hair for anything. Does powder hurt the hair, and would you advise using peroxide on it. I heard that peroxide makes it red. (2) My eyelashes are coming out gradually and I fear in time I won't have any. Would you try putting vaseline on them every night? They claim this makes them dark, heavy and long. Does it?

MISS INQUISITIVE.

(1) Let nature take its course with your hair. Anything that you would use would give an artificial look. Peroxide causes dandruff.

(2) Use vaseline on your eyelashes. It helps to make them long and heavy.

ANGEL FOOD RECIPES.

Angel Food Cake—(Fine if directions are followed)—One and one-half cups granulated sugar sifted five times and set aside, one cup flour sifted five times, one-half teaspoon baking powder in it, and one-half teaspoon cream of tartar (scant), one teaspoon vanilla. Get all ready before commencing to beat the eggs; add pinch salt. Then start to beat whites of ten large or eleven small eggs; beat about half, then add cream of tartar; beat to very stiff froth. Beat over hot fire, then fold in lightly the flour, then vanilla, then beat forty-five minutes, slowly at first, then increase heat.

Angel Food—One cup flour, one and one-half cups granulated sugar, one heaping teaspoon cream of tartar, pinch of salt; sift all these together five times. Whites of twelve eggs; beat stiff, flavor with vanilla. When cold gradually add mixture of sifted flour, sugar, cream of tartar and salt. Before putting cake in pan, dust pan with cold water. Do not grease. Bake thirty-five or forty minutes. Have oven hot at first, then gradually decrease the heat. Never fails.

THE TABLE.

Vegetable Soup—Ten-cent soup bone, two or three potatoes, salted onions, one-half cup barley or rice, celery to suit taste, a little cabbage, carrots and parsnips, if you like, one onion tomato. Put tomatoes through blender to keep the seeds out.

New Cheese-Rice Dish—Boil a cup of rice in a lot of water until done; add a little salt while boiling, drain when done. Make a white sauce of one tablespoon of butter and the same amount of flour add one and one-quarter cups of milk, boil until it thickens and free from lumps; add the cheese, one-half pound more or less can be used to suit the taste; when the cheese is melted add the rice and serve.

Savoyed Chops—Peel good-sized potatoes and slice them evenly as possible. Drop them into ice water. Put a few at a time into a towel and shake to dry the moisture out of them, then drop them into boiling lard or oil, fry until golden brown, and when of a light brown take them out with a skimmer and they will be crisp and not greasy. Sprinkle salt over them as you fry.

Lenox Potatoes—Chop cold boiled potatoes, and to two cups of potatoes add two tablespoons butter, sprinkle with salt and pepper, cover with thin cream and bake in a moderate oven until cream is nearly absorbed. Sprinkle with grated cheese and return dish to oven to brown. Serve with onions and potatoes or onions and state bread prepared in this way are fine.

Apple Croquettes—Measure two cups quartered apples and put into sauce pan with one tablespoon water and two teaspoons butter, cook until tender. Press through sieve and put back into sauce pan with one tablespoon brown sugar, one tablespoon corn starch and a little salt; beat mixture until smooth, then allow to cool by putting on ice. When mixture is hard, form into croquettes, roll in bread crumbs and beaten egg, then in bread crumbs again, and fry in deep vegetable fat until nice and brown. These are delicious with smoked meats and roasted fowl.

Each Dainty—Peel and slice in halves six fresh peaches. Boil three sprigs of mint in one cup boiling water. Cover closely and let stand till cool. Strain and add one cup sugar. Boil until it threads. Quickly add strained juice of one orange and one lemon and beat all into whites of two eggs. Fill peach halves with this meringue, put together and top each with a walnut.

Raspberry Snowdrifts—For peaches sponge cake mixture in thin sheets. When cold, cut with a sharp knife in narrow strips about four inches long. Place these, log cabin fashion and about four inches high, as many small plates as there are guests. Heap the centers with whipped cream, slightly sweetened, and flavored with orange or sugared berries (or peaches) about the base. The cream may be garnished with a few crystallized rose petals.

Tea Kisses—Sift together two cups flour, two teaspoons baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt; then rub in one-half cup butter, one cup white sugar, add two eggs well beaten, scant one-third cup sweet milk and

TODAY'S BEAUTY HELPS

Nothing excites more criticism than a woman with her face all daubed with face powder in her desire to hide a faulty or an aging skin. Instead of using powder, which clogs and enlarges the pores, it is far better to use a good face lotion that will improve and permanently benefit the skin. By dissolving four ounces of spumax in a half pint of hot water you can make an inexpensive lotion that will do wonders as a skin whitener and complexion beautifier. It removes all shininess, sallowness and roughness, and gives the skin a smooth, velvety tone, while it does not rub off easily like powder, nor does it show on the skin.

By washing the hair with a teaspoonful of cantarox dissolved in a cup of hot water, afterward rinsing thoroughly with clear water, one finds that it dries quickly and evenly, is unstreaked, bright, soft and very fluffy, so fluffy in fact, that it looks more abundant than it is and so soft that arranging it becomes a pleasure. This simple, inexpensive shampoo cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly of all dandruff and dirt, and leaves a wholesome feeling. All scalp irritation will disappear, and the hair will be brighter and glossier than ever before.—Advertisement.

SHORT SKIRT HAS BROUGHT IN STYLE HIGH SHOES IN PARIS

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.) Paris, Aug. 12.—The short skirt has brought back into style the high shoes of the second empire. White and fancy colors are no longer in favor with the most fashionable women who incline rather to plain black entire cloth uppers, with patent leather tips. The heels are higher than they have ever been since the eighteenth century. The extremists of this style frequently seen in the Bois de Boulogne carry themselves as if they were walking on stilts.

Referring to the outcry in Berlin against the tyrannical domination of Paris in the matter of styles, and the campaign for purely national German fashions, one fashion authority declares that writers, politicians, and economists are powerless to alter styles.

The Germans will have no more success in their war on French styles than will have the French on their war on German music, in the opinion of this authority.

In proof of his assertion, he produces a recent number of Berlin fashion review with fashion plates, showing that there the closed, umbrella skirt has given way to the bell skirt with some plaits and trimmings as in Paris.

The Berlin hat, too, has taken the rakish form of the forage cap and worn well over on the ear, in a marvelous imitation of what was seen until recently in the Bis de Boulogne and on the Champs Elysees. Now the hats in Paris have taken on a brim and are gradually widening out into a rational compromise between the parasol and the turban.

VOICES GRATITUDE FOR OUTING GIVEN TO SMALL DAUGHTER

"Must Be Like a Dream," Writes Chicago Mother to Little Girl Here With Fresh Aid Kiddles.

No one can ever estimate the sum total of happiness which results from the annual visit of the Chicago fresh air children to Janesville each year. Occasionally, however, an inkling of the appreciation is gained through letters, words and actions, and it is such whole-souled gratitude which makes the whole enterprise worth double the time and effort put forth.

An expression of the appreciation of one Chicago mother for what was being done for her child has just come to the attention of the philanthropic department of the Home Economics club in two letters, one from the mother to her small daughter, who is being cared for at a home in this city, and the other to Mrs. A. Blumreich, 519 Cherry street, in whose charge the child is for the two week period.

There is something most touching in the mother's letter to the daughter, in which she admonishes the little girl to be good, make as little trouble as possible, and be grateful for the many things which are being done for her. The child comes from South Halstead street, in the heart of the congested district. The mother's letter is worthy of publication:

"My dear child:
"Just to think you are really having a vacation, so unexpected and sudden. But all the same it is true. Pleased to hear you arrived safely and above all that you are being well cared for. How beautiful that sounded to me when I read those words. Lillie, I want you to think how kind it is of that lady to take you and care for you, giving all you need for two whole weeks. Just think how much it means, and all for a stranger. Now Lillie, I want you to do your share. Be a good girl. Keep clean and tidy, and not make any more work than you can help. You know that is not much on your part for what you are receiving. It must be like a dream to be having such a beautiful change of living. How nice to have a lawn, swing, flowers, big doll, dog and true cats. Just the things your little soul is always wishing for. You know I would like to take a peep at you on the quiet, darning, and brother Fred not far away. It seems everything is turning out lovely on your first experience of a vacation and being among strangers. I am not worrying any more since I received your beautiful letter, just hoping you will have fine weather so you can be out and get well and strong. You needed a change so bad. Auntie is so thankful you got such a good home. Hope you will be a good girl. Must now conclude. And please tell brother Fred to be good if you see him. Say your prayers for everybody and yourself. With love and kisses.

From loving mother."

The mother's letter to Mrs. Blum-reich is also full of gratitude for what is being done for her child, and shows the attitude that is taken by Chicago mothers toward the outings provided for their little ones.

Heart and Home Problems

Letters May Be Addressed To Mrs. Thompson, in Care of The Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I wonder if you could help me a little. I feel so sad at times I don't know what to do. My husband is very cross and talks and nags and finds fault with everything I do. I don't know what to do. I feel so sad at times I don't know what to do. I feel so sad at times I don't know what to do. I feel so sad at times I don't know what to do.

For instance, if some article is misplaced or if there is some thing on the table that does not suit him he will swear something terrible, curse me and use language too vile to imagine. If the baby is naughty he gets the same kind of treatment. He hurts my feelings so much that at times I just can't help but cry, and then he calls me a "cry baby."

I always went to school and consequently never learned housework as I should have. But I try awfully hard and whenever I don't do something just so, then I catch it. What can I do to stop him from this?

He makes fun of my religion. I am a Protestant and he has no belief at all. He will not go to church and does not want me to go. If you were in my place would you go anyway? I do not believe he loves me any more. He is getting of late to spend his evenings uptown, staying out until nine or ten o'clock. How can I keep him home? I don't expect every minute of his time, of course, and I would not care if he went only once or twice a week.

He seems to be growing tired of being affectionate. It is not my per-

CHAPTER I.

On Special Service.

It was already growing dusk when the Stanton Battery of Horse Artillery returned wearily to camp after hours of hard field drill, the men eyes conscious that no evolution, however trivial, was being overlooked by "Stonewall" Jackson, sitting astride his sorrel on a little eminence to the left, his stern face unrelieved by even the semblance of a smile.

The winter quarters of the Stanton artillery were slightly off the main road and I remained for some time overhauling the care of the horses before approaching the hut where the noncommissioned officers had mess. We were all of us still at the table, discussing the incidents of the drill, when a Lieutenant appeared suddenly in the doorway.

"Sergeant Wyatt?" he inquired briefly.

I arose to my feet.

"Here, sir," I answered in some surprise.

"You are requested to report to General Jackson at once; his headquarters for tonight are at Coulter's farm, on the dirt pike. You will ride your own horse."

Five minutes later I was girding my own horse down the dark road, bending low in the saddle, obsessed with a feeling that this mission, whatever it might turn out to be, promised a change in my fortunes.

It was an ugly path, rutted deep by artillery wheels, and dangerous for the horse. I was an hour reaching the Coulter house, a double log cabin, some fifty feet or more back from the road. It was with some difficulty that I made my way through the obstructing guard to the steps, where an officer took my name at the closed door, disappeared in a sudden blaze of light and I stood there silently in the shadows waiting.

Ten minutes must have elapsed before the door opened again and I heard my name called. It was a rough appearing, commonplace interior. A sturdy fire burned in the fireplace, and three lamps illumined the scene, revealing the presence of five men, among whom I instantly recognized Ewell, Ashby, together with Jackson, and his chief of staff. The fifth occupant of the room sat alone in one corner, his face partially concealed, revealing little other than a fringe of gray whiskers. Jackson, seated behind a table littered with papers and maps, glanced up at the announcement of the orderly, and I came instantly to attention, my hand lifted in salute. The general's stern blue eyes surveyed me intently.

"Sergeant Wyatt, Stanton artillery?"

"Yes, sir."

"How long, may I ask, have you been in the service?"

"Since May, '61, sir."

"Ah! indeed. And your age?"

"Twenty-four, sir."

He made some remark aside to the aide, who nodded back, and pointed to a map before them.

"You are a younger man in appearance than I had expected to see, sergeant," Jackson said slowly. "Yet I have learned within the last year to have confidence in young men. War is a swift developer of manhood. Your colonel speaks of you in the highest terms and informs me that you are a native of Green Briar county."

"Our home was at Lewisburg, sir."

"Then you are doubtless intimately acquainted with that section?"

"Very well, indeed, general."

"Jackson sat motionless and in silence for what seemed a long while, his gray eyes on my face, but his mind evidently elsewhere, one hand unconsciously crumpling a folded paper. Ashby moved his chair, causing it to crouch noisily on the floor, and the commander aroused at the unusual sound."

"By any possibility are you related to Judge Joel Wyatt?" he questioned slowly.

"He was my father, sir. He has been dead two years."

"I regret to hear it. Your mother, unless I am mistaken, was a Farquhar, of North Carolina?"

"Yes, sir—she has returned to her old home."

"The best of southern blood, gentlemen," he said smiling, glancing toward the others, but with watchful eyes instantly returning to scan me. "Was she driven out of Green Briar by the state, or unrest in that section?"

"In a measure—yes," I replied promptly. "It was hardly safe for her to remain there alone. The county is filled with Union sympathizers, and roamed over by bands of guerrillas, claiming allegiance with both sides, but sparing no one. At present, I understand, Federal troops have been sent there from Charleston and are in control."

"Your information is partially correct; but in order to perfect plans now contemplated I require a still more definite knowledge of existing conditions. I need to know accurately the number and distribution of the Union forces in Green Briar, and also more complete information regarding those irregulars who are in sympathy with us, as well as the character of their leaders. Judging from the recommendation given you by Colonel Maitland I felt that you were peculiarly adapted to render this service. However, Sergeant Wyatt, I propose stating plainly that this may prove an exceedingly dangerous detail, and if you decide to accept it, it must be done as a volunteer."

He paused questioningly, and I drew a quick breath, realizing suddenly the seriousness of the situation and the importance of my decision.

"I am perfectly ready to go, sir."

Ewell broke in impatiently with his high-pitched voice.

"May I ask if it is generally known in Green Briar that you are enlisted in the Confederate service?"

"To but very few, sir," I answered, turning to look across at my unexpected questioner. "To none I am at all likely to encounter. My mother and father were all Unionists."

Court House.

"He will answer as well as any other. It is scarcely probable the man would be known in that remote section. What is the full name? and where is he from?"

"Charles H.; appointed from Vermont."

"Colonel Swan will arrange the necessary papers and equipment. Orderly, have Major Kline step in here at once. Ah, Kline, have you among your trophies of war a Federal Lieutenant's uniform which will probably fit this man?"

"I believe so, sir," and the officer addressed ran his eye appraisingly over my figure. "Any particular regiment?"

"Third United States cavalry. Have it pressed and sent here at once, securely wrapped, together with saber and revolvers. Sergeant, do you desire a better mount?"

"No, sir, my horse is fresh and a good traveler."

"Then that will be all, Kline; except, of course, complete Federal cavalry equipment for the horse."

The officer saluted and disappeared, the door instantly closing behind him, cutting off the hum of voices without. There was a moment of silence.

"You had better retain your present dress until after you leave the valley," counseled Jackson, slowly. "Swan will furnish you with a pass, which should be carefully destroyed after passing our pickets at Covington. It will be of no service to you beyond that point. My best wishes for your success, Sergeant Wyatt."

He stood up, and I felt the firm grasp of his hand. Then Ashby gripped my shoulder.

"Wyatt," he said kindly, "if you ever desire to change your arm of the service, you are the kind of man I want to ride with me."

I smiled in appreciation, but before I could answer, the man who had been sitting silently in the corner arose, and stood erect in the light. The gleam of the lamp instantly revealed his face, still shadowed by the wide hat brim, the firm, bearded chin, the gravely smiling eyes.

"General Ashby," he said with quiet dignity, "Sergeant Wyatt, I am sure, performs this important duty without thought of reward. It is the South that has need of such men in every branch of her service." He came forward, and extended his hand cordially.

"I am General Lee, and am very glad to greet, and wish God speed to the son of Judge Wyatt. If you return in safety, you will report to me in person at Richmond. General Jackson will so arrange with your battery commander."

They were all upon their feet, standing in respectful attention. I murmured something, I scarcely knew what, bowing as I backed toward the door. And this was Lee—Robert E. Lee—this man with the kind, thoughtful face, the gentle voice, the gravely considerate manner. And he had greeted me in words of personal friendship, had spoken to me of my father. I know I straightened to soldierly erectness, every pulse thrilling with a new resolve. A moment I stood there, my eyes on the one face I saw before me, and then went out into the darkness. The orderly closed the door.

CHAPTER II.

An Unwelcome Companion.

It was in the chill of a cold, gray morning that I rode into Strasburg, jogging along at the rear of a squadron of Fifth Virginia cavalrymen, who chanced to be headed for the same place. These found quarters in the town, but I proceeded a mile or more south on the valley pike, until I reached a single-roomed cabin, heavy wooden shutters barring the windows, the door closed and securely fastened. The place to all appearances was deserted, and had been for a long while. Although situated scarcely a hundred feet back from the valley turnpike, which was never without its travelers, and along which armies marched and counter-marched, the surroundings were those of a remote wilderness. I dismounted, and leading my horse, pressed a difficult passage through the bushes. To my surprise the rear door stood slightly ajar, and my eyes perceived the movement of an ill-defined shadow within.

"Hello there!" I called out, yet instinctively drawing a step backward. "Is there any room here for a tired man?"

The tall, angular figure of a mountaineer immediately appeared in the doorway, and a gray, wrinkled face, scraggly bearded, looked forth, the eyes glinting and filled with suspicion.

"Wal, who be ye, an' what do ye want here?"

Fully satiated, Steve Smith Boyd walked into the vestry, and wrote his resignation from the rectory of Market Square church, for he could no longer teach, and preach, faith—in the thirty-nine articles of religion! With in his grasp he had held a position of wealth, of power, of fame! He scarcely considered their loss; and in the ease with which he relinquished them, he knew that he was self-absorbed from the charge of using his conscience as a ladder of ambition! If personal vanity had entered into his desire to build the new cathedral, it had been incidental, not fundamental. It made him profoundly happy to know this with positiveness.

He called up the house of Jim Sargent, and asked for Gail.

"Come over," he invited her. "I want to see you very much. I'm in the church. Come in through the vestry."

"All right," was the cheerful reply. "I'll be there in a minute."

He had been very shy! He was tremendously pleased with himself! He had kept out of his voice all the longing, and all the exultation, and all the love! He would not trust even one vibration of his secret to a cold telephone wire!

He set the door of the vestry open wide. Within the church, the organist had conquered that baffling run in the mighty prelude of Bach, and the great dim spaces up amid the arches were pulsing in ecstasy with the tremendous harmony. Outside, upon the background of the celestial strain, there rose a fluttering, a twittering, a cooing. The doves of spring had returned to the vestry yard.

Just a moment and Gail appeared, poised in the doorway, with a slim pink scarf about her shoulders, a simple frock of delicate gray upon her slender figure, her brown hair waving about her oval face, a faint flush upon her cheeks, her brown eyes sparkling, her red lips smiling up at him.

He had intended to tell her much, but instead, he folded her in his arms, and she nestled there, content. For a long, happy moment they stood, lost to the world of thought, and then she looked up at him, and laughed.

"I knew it from your voice," she said.

He laughed with her; then he grew grave, but there was the light of the great happiness in his gravity.

"I have resigned," he told her.

"That was a part of what she had known."

"And not for me!" she exulted. It was not a question. She saw that in him was no doubt, no quandary, no struggle between faith and disbelief.

"I see my way clearly," he smiled down at her; "and there are no thorns to cut for me. I shall never change."

"And we shall walk hand in hand about the greatest work in the world," she softly reminded him, and there were tears in her eyes. "But what work shall that be, Ted?" She looked up at him for guidance, now.

"To shed into other lives some of the beauty which blossoms in our own," he replied, walking with her in to the great dim nave, where the shadows still quivered with the under-echoes of the mighty Bach prelude. "I have been thinking much of the many things you have said to me," he told her, "and particularly of the need, not for a new religion, but for a re-birth of the old; that same new impulse towards the better and the higher life which Christ brought into the world. I have been thinking on the mission of him, and it was the very mission to the need of which you have held so firmly. He came to clear away the thorns of creed which had grown up between the human heart and God! The thistles have grown again. The time is almost ripe, Gail, for a new quickening of the spirit; for the second coming."

She glanced at him, startled.

"For a new voice in the wilderness," she wondered.

"Not yet," he answered. "We have signs in the hearts of men, for there is a great awakening of the public conscience throughout the world; but before the day of harvest arrives, we must have a sign in the sky. No great spiritual revival has ever swept the world without its attendant supernatural phenomena, for mysticism is a part of religion, and will be to the end of time. Reason, by the very nature of itself, realizes its own limitations, and demands something beyond its understanding upon which to hang its faith. It is the need of faith which distinguishes the soul from the mind."

"A sign," mused Gail, her eyes aglow with the majesty of the thought.

"It will come," he assured her, with the calm prescience of prophecy itself. "As no great spiritual revival has ever swept the world without its attendant supernatural phenomena, so no great spiritual revival has ever swept the world without its concreted symbol which men might wear upon their breasts. The cross! What shall be its successor? A ball of fire in the sky? Who knows! If that symbol of man's spiritual rejuvenation, of his renewed nearness to God, were, in reality, a ball of fire, Gail, I would hold it up in the sight of all mankind though it shriveled my arm!"

The thin treble note stole out of the organ loft, pulsing its timid way among the high, dim arches, as if seeking a lodgment where it might fasten its tiny thread of harmony, and grow into a song of new glory, the glory which had been born that day in the two earnest hearts beneath in the avenue of slender columns. The soft light from one of the clerestory windows flooded in on the compassionate son of man above the altar. The very air seemed to vibrate with the new inspiration which had been voiced in the old Market Square church. Gail gazed up at Smith Boyd, with the first content her heart had ever known; content in which there was both earnestness and serenity, to replace all her groping. He met her gaze with eyes in which there glowed the endless love which it is beyond the power of speech to tell. There was a moment of ecstasy, of complete understanding, of the perfect unity which should last throughout their lives. In that harmony, they walked from the canopy of dim arches, out through the vestry, and beneath the door above which perched the two gray doves cooing. For an instant Gail looked back into the solemn depths, and a wistfulness came into her eyes.

"The ball of fire," she mused. "When shall we see it in the sky?"

THE END.

Thrust at Scotch Frugality.

"No wonder the Scotch get rich," said a man, laying down a magazine about the multimillionaires of Scottish blood. "No wonder." He puffed his Havana thoughtfully. "An Irishman and a Scotchman went into a bar one day," he said. "But the Irishman had no money." He blew a fragrant cloud towards the ceiling. "So they came out," he said, "without a drink."—London Opinion.

Diamond Retains Luster.

Only the expert can tell an imitation diamond from a real stone when the imitation is new, but after the fake stone has been worn for a little time it soon loses its luster. It is this which makes a real diamond valuable. No matter how long it is worn it will keep its sparkle almost as well as ever.

Two Big Factors for Wisconsin

Nature and the Wisconsin Daily League have arranged themselves to make business for the advertiser who will investigate conditions.

Wisconsin produces 90% of the peas canned in the United States.

Wisconsin is the leading dairy state in the Union.

Wisconsin has so many diversities in its income as to make it a never failing working ground for business.

The Wisconsin Daily League enters 125,000 of the best Wisconsin homes every day.

Twenty-six of the best papers at the best selling points in the state are read by over 600,000 of the population of the state.

Every publisher of every paper has been trained to co-operation. One order and one check distributed from the central office of the secretary clips off all unnecessary trouble for the advertiser.

Big advertisers are coming into the Wisconsin Daily League; Are coming into Wisconsin because of the Wisconsin Daily League.

MAY BE A SHORTAGE ON TURKISH TOBACCO

Tobacco Man Returning from Asia Minor Reports Shortage and Predicts Advance in Price.

A shortage in Turkish tobacco and an advance in the price are the predictions of James M. Dixon, of the Tobacco Products Corporation, who has just returned from a tour through Asia Minor, Turkey and Greece.

"The available supply from the crop of 1914, now being dealt in," said Mr. Dixon, "is only half what it usually is, and of high grade tobacco, such as is used in America, there is only 40 per cent of the normal. The crop of 1915 is small in acreage, having been curtailed on account of the grain, and cannot receive proper attention, so that there is no relief in sight. Furthermore, Egypt is entirely cut off from its ordinary supply, the Black Sea and Asia Minor, and has been compelled to buy in Greece and Macedonia this year, thus increasing competition."

"Owing to the war, it is difficult to make shipments, even when purchases are made. Unless the war ends soon or unless the Dardanelles are taken by the allies, the situation in the tobacco leaf market will be extremely interesting before long. Turkish tobacco, so called, is that raised in Macedonia and adjacent places, most of which are now parts of Greece. Tobacco used in connection with Macedonia Greek are raised on the southern shore of the Black Sea in Asia Minor from Samau east, and on the north shore of that sea in Russia, from Sebastopol east. Egypt gets three-fourths of its supply normally from the Black Sea, and owing to the war, not a pound can be had from that section, although the 1914 crop was ample."

MAGNOLIA CENTER

Magnolia Center, Aug. 11.—Mrs. Finerman of Janesville, and Mrs. M. B. Finerman spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. Scott. A large crowd attended the social at Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Harper's Tuesday evening.

FOOTVILLE

Footville, Aug. 12.—Friends of Miss Libbie Ogden will be glad to learn that she is improving and the prospects are that she will soon be well. It will be remembered that she was quite seriously injured when she met with a painful accident at the home of her sister, Mrs. Edith Townsend, of Janesville.

The sacred concert given by the choir at the Christian church on Sunday evening was a decided success in every sense of the word. The music and singing were fine and was listened to by a large and appreciative audience. A pleasing feature of the occasion was the singing of the 23d psalm in Hebrew by William Rabin of Milwaukee. Mr. Rabin has accepted the Christian religion and we believe intends to work for the cause of Christ. He already speaks fluently in fourteen different languages, although as yet has not become proficient in the English language. Four weeks from last Sunday night it has been planned to hold another concert. These concerts are planned to be a help to the young people as well also as a source of amusement.

Mrs. Lottie Fisher returned to her home in Janesville after a pleasant visit with Mrs. Henry Stevens the latter part of the week. The C. W. 3. M. of the Christian church met with Mrs. Herman Long on Wednesday afternoon of this week. A party of friends of Mr. and Mrs. Larimore came up from Springfield, Ill., and spent Sunday with them and attended the concert in the evening. They made the trip by auto.

Friends of Mrs. John Cator will be pleased to learn that she is improving after her very serious illness. After weary months of suffering Fred Pankhurst died at his home in Hanover, Monday morning. A wife and two little boys survive, and they have the sympathy of the entire community in their great affliction.

Mrs. Sol. Spoon returned to her home in Janesville on Sunday afternoon after a pleasant visit with relatives here. Mrs. Helen Silverthorn visited in Evansville on Friday of last week. Miss Mary Lynch returned to her home in Janesville after a short visit with her sister, Mrs. W. F. Silverthorn. Mrs. Walter Honeysett spent Monday in Hanover, called there by the death of Fred Pankhurst.

Mrs. Moore and daughter of Michigan are guests of the former's sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Honeysett.

Mr. and Mrs. Sarasy entertained relatives from the northern part of the state over Sunday. Patrick Barrett of Chicago is calling on old friends and acquaintances here.

Mr. Cleveland, the new barber, has his family comfortably settled in the new house recently erected by John Langdon.

Mrs. William Timm entertained her brother from Monroe a part of last week. A. B. Smith of California, an old Wisconsin boy, is visiting at the home of his niece, Mrs. William Pankhurst, and calling on old friends in this vicinity.

Funeral services over the remains of the late Fred Pankhurst were held from the Christian church at one o'clock Wednesday afternoon. Interment was in the Grove cemetery.

The Ladies' Aid of the Christian church will meet with Mrs. Albert Bohling on Thursday afternoon of this week. A large attendance is desired. Mrs. Arthur Jones and son, Lester, are enjoying an outing in the northern part of the state.

On Tuesday evening a surprise party was given for Miss Carrie Gulekson at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Marty, it being her sixteenth birthday.

HANOVER

Hanover, Aug. 11.—The funeral of the late Fred Pankhurst was held Wednesday from his home here and the Christian church at Footville, conducted by the Rev. Lorimer of Footville. The pallbearers were: Chas. Rote, Ernest Farmley, Frank Pepper, Geo. Hutton, Ted Lentz and Clayton Jackson. The floral offerings were many and beautiful.

The Ladies' Aid of the Bible church met with Mrs. Bern Raymond Thursday afternoon. Misses Emma and Minnie Fieblekom and Mrs. Clara Sedgmore visited relatives in Janesville Friday.

The J. Y. P. S. held a regular meeting on Saturday evening. Three new members, Miss Ella Swain, Miss Cora Lentz and Emil Tews, joined. It was decided to have the Sunday school picnic the latter part of the month.

Mr. and Mrs. John Coo and son of Beloit and Mrs. Fred Teubert and daughter, Edna, spent Sunday with Mrs. Mary Dearhammer. Miss Ruth Ehringer of Chicago, visited relatives here over Sunday. Mike Ehringer, Harry Dettmer and William Walters attended the ball game at Janesville Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Jensen of Beloit, spent Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ole Jensen. Several from here attended the ball game at Plymouth Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Peters, Minneapolis, Minn., are visiting relatives here. Mrs. Hattie Borkenhagen was an Orfordville visitor Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Smeek of Chicago, are visiting Mrs. Luckfield and family. Among those who were Orfordville visitors Tuesday evening were: Misses Rena and Frances Luckfield, Helen and Ethel Blunt, Mayme and John Borkenhagen, Julia and Fred Lentz, Maude Dettmer, Cora Lentz, Helen Walters, Syble Archibald and Clayton and Rennie Jackson.

Tom Hemingway received word of the death of his sister, Mrs. Robertson, at her home in Omaha, Nebraska. A funeral was made at Janesville on Wednesday. Those attending from here were: Mr. and Mrs. Tom Hemingway and daughter, Ruth, and Mrs. Ora Millard.

Miss Emma Borkenhagen, who has been home on a vacation, returned to her work in Janesville Monday. An ice cream social will be held at the White on Thursday evening. A

UTTER'S CORNERS

Utter's Corners, Aug. 11.—Mrs. William Freeman and three children of South Dakota are visiting relatives here and at Whitewater. Miss Evelyn Teetshorn returned Sunday morning from a two weeks' visit with relatives at Cresco, Iowa, and Minnetonka, Minn.

Mrs. Will Dixon and children of Lima Center spent Saturday and Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Farnsworth. Two young men, by the name of Richardson, of Nellisville, were at the Springbrook last week, visiting the Freeman and Montgomery families.

L. Hull and Zora Hardy of Whitewater, called on some of their old neighbors here Friday. Mrs. R. R. Sherman and son George of Happy Hollow and Miss Anna Bloham of Whitewater spent Sunday afternoon with Mrs. B. W. Farnsworth and daughter Nettie.

Owing to the rush of business in the harvest field but few of our farmers will be able to attend the fair in Janesville this week. The social at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Will Teetshorn Friday night was a very pleasant affair, and the Junior league are pleased with the results, having cleared $11.10, which they applied on the preacher's salary.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, Aug. 12, 1875.—Almost a frost this morning. Col. Britton is expected to return this week from the Atlantic coast. The city tax roll will go into the hands of the city treasurer tomorrow morning. The aggregate amount is $41,000 or $5,000 more than last year. The increase is occasioned by $3,000 borrowed for the school fund, and $2,000 of city bonds, which must be paid this year.

New rye is being brought to market. No local wheat has yet been sold. Two farmers have contracted to furnish some of the Corn Exchange folks with 5,000 or 7,000 bushels of oats to be delivered this week. The rain will likely be the cause of a non-fulfillment of the contract.

The Mutuals start this afternoon for a trip to Winona, Minn., to play a game of ball with the club of that place. They will also visit La Crosse, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Red Wing and other places before returning.

In the notice of the sudden death of Andrew J. McGlone, in yesterday's issue, there was a mis-statement as to the manner in which he was killed. We have it from reliable sources that he was driving engine No. 22 on the Iowa Central, bound north, and ran into a drove of cattle, knocking the engine from the track, turning it completely over, and crushing the frontal or bone of the forehead, which caused the instant death of the man.

BOMBARDMENT UPON PENINSULA LEAVES NOTHING BUT RUIN

There Are Few Houses Left and Hardly No People Other Than
Fighting Soldiers in Gallipoli
District.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Gallipoli Peninsula, Aug. 12.—There are few houses on the Gallipoli peninsula that have not been wrecked by the severe bombardment incident to the landing of the allied troops here. And there are no houses that are now inhabited.

There are wheat fields waiting for the sower and vineyards and olive groves where work might be done. In the villages the few remaining shops stand idle. From the harbors along the Dardanelles and Gulf of Saros, the boats have vanished, and the nets of the fishermen have dried in the hot sun a long time.

Out on the fields the crude plows and harrows lie idle. The wind-blown clouds have had their own vass sails striped by shot and shell.

Town, village and countryside have been deserted by their populations. The picturesque civilian garb of Turk and Greek has disappeared and instead everywhere the dull olive drab and khaki uniform of the Turkish soldier.

This is the Gallipoli peninsula today.

The British and French ships have thrown tons of thousands of heavy shells on the narrow strip of land. Madras and Noulain have been razed. Kirilia is a heap of ruins and Gallipoli stands as a monument to what modern artillery may do. To any of these must be added every other town, village, and hamlet on the peninsula, and they are by no means few in number.

Waste Ammunition.
The expenditure of artillery and aeroplane ammunition of the British and French has been enormous, and the shells are being thrown into the sea. The British exactly 101 shells—a sort of salute to Czar Maria, because there is nothing in Gallipoli to call for such an extravagant expenditure of money. At another point, nearly 98 shells were hurled. Both bombardments resulted in a bag of one shrapnel wound.

But the bombardment was a fine exhibition. For the greater part of an hour it kept the echoes of the Gallipoli hills alive. Then the cruiser steamed to other parts—to one of the islands in the Aegean, where its crew may be enjoying a good rest at this moment.

Not a square foot of ground on the peninsula is safe against the British ship artillery. The British gunners start early—about 5:15 o'clock in the morning. Why, nobody knows. Light conditions this morning would be late in the afternoon, when the sun illuminates the hills of the peninsula from the southwest, when, in other words, it is behind, instead of before, the gunners. But modern gunners are not hampered much by such trifles as light conditions, especially when indirect fire, or "map" bombardment, is the order of the day. The cannoner makes the map of the cannoner's own hand a sufficient guide.

In the conning tower of the bombarding vessel stands an officer with a map and a few other accessories, and puts the higher mathematics, astronomy, and the reports of aeroplane scouts and observers to good use. Astronomy and artillery may seem unrelated, but at a pinch the astronomer of the bombardment ship can make splendid use of it. If the land marks on the coast do not suit his purposes well enough, he can establish to a fraction of a geographical second just where he can measure distance between gun and target on his map, about certain numbers to his crews in the turret and bang!

Like An Earthquake.

The preceding is simple enough and the language of the peninsula were it a sentient being, would know it. The peninsula gives the impression of a post of very large and exceedingly active moles having visited it—together with a violent earthquake. Seen from an elevation, the canted anywhere, the hills, slopes and narrow valleys appear to have broken out in a sort of heaving.

Daily the rash increases. A few days ago The Associated Press correspondent was walked at 5:15 a. m. by having a shell explode inconveniently close—through the canopy of the tent in which he slept, or had sleep until that moment. Other shells came and before the British cruiser had landed both far from and near to, the tent. But by that time the correspondent lay snug in a bombproof.

If it isn't artillery that spoils the Gallipoli landscape, it is the busy aeroplane's bomb. The Allies have many flyers and all of them are bent upon making life on the peninsula as precarious as possible. Every day these birds of ill omen come, and they all throw bombs, some explode on the ground, others do the trick in three installations—in a sort of ping-pong crash that makes the sound of striking lightning a poor imitation of what men can do in that line.

The hole left by the aerial bomb is not large, but the landscape suffers nevertheless. Everything within a generous radius of the explosion goes down. The grass vanishes under the hot withering breath, and bushes and trees are snapped like so many dry twigs.

To the British bombardment ships, the Turks pay no heed for local reasons. The bombardment is carried on from so long a range that the Turkish batteries cannot reach these disturbers of the idyllic peace.

Little attention. The hum of its motor is hardly heard when certain batteries get ready. But to get an aeroplane down is largely accident, and the war knows it. So on the hills and just to return compliments he drops a bomb when he happens to be over the offending battery—which he hardly ever is, according to the weekly experience of The Associated Press correspondent.

Turks Are Nervous.
What goes in the air must come down again. The law of gravity makes no exception, even in the case of shrapnel. So if the bomb of the aviator has missed you, the fragments of the shrapnel may not. It takes Turkish nerves to stand a sojourn on the peninsula for any length of time.

The Turks do not seem to mind the combination, in reality do not mind it at all. They are accustomed to the sound of the shrapnel falling. If "Kaiser" the supreme fate, will death by any means enumerated, then "Kaiser" will know it. Of course, a bombproof is a good thing if it exists. But to have a bombproof, even in a bombproof. So what is the use of a bombproof? Lastly, however, the men have been considered enough of their fortune of war to observe the progress of the yellow birds from under the trees.

Spending summer weather prevails on the peninsula. The sun is hot enough, but the proximity of two large bodies of water keeps the breeze stirring. There are alternate scents of the sea and the sea and wind to the Mediterranean. It is cool even in the middle of the day under the pines and cypresses, though the shade of the latter is a scant thing, and to keep in it one must keep shifting every few minutes. The slender cypress of these parts serves better as the column of a sun dial than the palm tree. In addition has the admirable quality of permitting the person resting under its fragrant roof to watch the aeroplanes properly, or at least to keep the map of the map. It is not merely that of an industrious little bumble bee instead of an aeroplane, all of which tends to make life on the peninsula less unattractive.

Nature There Yet.

But nature does not mind a few scars. In the pine brakes the aromatic resin floors and the needles emit their pungent fragrance. The rearing of waves on the crest of the hills and against the gentle slopes yellow wheat fields imitate the blue waters of the Dardanelles and the Aegean is showing waves under the impulse of the breeze. Cypresses sway and sigh as heretofore, the birds sing and the grasshoppers chirp—all tokens that nature at least is in a lush mood.

There are many nightingales on the peninsula—when the sun has set they begin their songs, generally cut short by a renewal of the fighting.

Every night there is dealing with machine guns, rifle, bayonet, knife, hand grenade and life destroying chemicals. Now and then somebody springs a mine besides. The noise of this sort of battle is not particularly great even at short distances from the two arenas. It moves over the ancient hills softly—spasmodically. The dull and constant raps of the machine guns are followed by the sharp and regular cracks of the rifles, while exploding hand grenades punctuate as it were the sentences of the paragraph of history that is being written.

Thus passes the night and at cock's crow peace comes and lingers until the man in the conning tower can read his map and establish angles and degrees for his large calibers.

ASSEMBLY REFUSES TO CUT UNIVERSITY EXTENSION EXPENSES

Assemblyman Kubasta's Attempt to Reduce Appropriation from $206,000 to $185,000 Fails.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., Aug. 12.—The assembly yesterday afternoon refused to reduce the expenses for the university extension department. The amendment for reducing the appropriation from $206,000 to $185,000 annually was offered by Assemblyman P. W. Kubasta of Merrill. This amendment was defeated on a roll call by a vote of 46 to 25. The bill was then passed in the form it was received from the senate.

In offering his amendment, Assemblyman Kubasta said that the university extension was one of the departments which had grown so fast that it had run away with itself. He declared that this department costs the state a lot of money for work that no one cares for.

Upholds Extension Work.
Assemblyman Smith of Milwaukee moved for the rejection of the amendment. Assemblyman Greenwald of Oshkosh said that this department was a Godsend to poor people, who did not have the opportunity of attending school. He pointed out that the appropriation in the bill as it came from the senate was the same as that granted the department two years ago. Assemblyman Vint of Milwaukee spoke at length against the reduction of the department, citing numerous instances where the department had given aid to cities that could not otherwise be had.

The bill as amended was defeated by a vote of 46 to 25. The roll call was as follows:
To kill the amendment—Assemblymen Ballard, Biel, Budlong, Cretney, Crosby, Folsch, Gresham, Grunwald, Johnson, Kent, Kleinschmidt, Krems, Kretlow, Kubaska, Lathrop, Lora, McGowan, Metcalfe, Moran, Morrison, Neumeister, Nordman, Nye, Poole, Prescott, Reinhardt, Rentz, Schindler, Schroeder, Smith, Spoor, Vincent, Stewart, Van der Zande, Vincent, Vint, Weber, Wells—46.

For the amendment—Assemblymen Armann, Allenmacher, Beckwith, Berninger, Bradley, Caldwell, Dickie, Edwards, Ellings, Everett, Ganev, Finger, Ganser, Harrington, Hocking, Heim, Killa, Kubasta, Laursen, Morgan, Nelson, Van Gorden, Winagar and Speaker Whitte—25.
The bill as amended by the senate was then engrossed and concurred in by a vote of 50 to 10.

Pass Engineering Appropriation.
The bill appropriating $19,000 for the state engineering department was passed by a vote of 52 to 10. Assemblyman Spoor made a futile attempt to kill the bill. He said that when the consolidation of these departments was made it was necessary that no additional appropriation would be necessary and he considered that this appropriation of $19,000 should not be granted.

The assembly bill which would prohibit other than freeholders from serving on the county board, concurred in the Skogmo bill for special terms of the county court in 1916. The bill was amended and concurred in the Bennett bill giving special state aid to rural school teachers. As amended this bill gives state aid of $2 a month to teachers who remain in the same district a second year and increases this amount to $4 the third year and $8 the fourth year or thereafter. A special aid of from $10 to $15 a month is given to rural school teachers with special educational qualifications.

The recall of the Heim bill from the governor and the presentation of an amendment by Assemblyman Heim, which would exempt political or other organizations vying campaigns against measures from filing expense statements, stirred up a hornet's nest.

Attacks Home Rule League.
This amendment is instigated by a body of black mailers masquerading under the name of the Home Rule and Taxpayers' league. It is declared Assemblyman Nelson Falk of Jefferson county. He said the amendment would destroy the bill.

Asked by Assemblyman Spoor who it was that was against the amendment incorporated in the bill, Assemblyman Heim said:

"It is instigated by T. C. Richmond."

When further questioned Assemblyman Heim said that his bill would be better if the latter amendment were not incorporated. Assemblyman Heim said it was all nonsense to have all of these organizations filing expense statements. Assemblyman Morrison objected to receiving the amendment. Assemblyman Harrington moved a suspension of the rules, but his motion failed by a vote of 32 to 39. The assembly then passed a resolution returning the bill to the governor.
